BUICK GIVES BONDS TO MOKENA TWINS

MOKENA CIVIC GROUP TABOOS PRICE SNOOPERS

Various communities in Will County have been asked to name members to the County Price Panel Board for the purpose of checking on local business firms to see if their prices are in line with the OPA ceiling prices and this matter was very thoroughly discussed by the Mokena Civic Association at their meeting Tuesday night in Hatch Hall.

Mayor Harry F. Mall explained the proposition and the Association went on record as being opposed to what they termed "snooper" tactics and consequently no one from Mokena will be named on the Price Panel. If any checking of local firms is to be done it will have to be done by outsiders.

Frankfort Meets Red Cross Quota

The chairman of Frankfort Township Red Cross, Rev. Rudolf Malek, announces that the goal set for this year, $650.00 has been reached. Much praise is due to the leaders of the campaign, Mrs. Blanche Mitchell as well as Mrs. Lilly Hershbach who had a very active and hardworking crew of workers. They did a fine job, Mrs. Geo. Andrew, Treasurer, is busy taking care of the money. At Lincoln Estates a special permanent committee has been set up of which Mrs. Wm. Lockwood is chairman and the following acted as helpers in the War Drive: Mesdames Celia Swatek, Mary Vakendis, Isabel Davidson, Warren Wilson, Eva Heath, Fred Stringer and Bob Rainford. They all worked hard and long at the task and Rev. Malek takes the opportunity, publicly to thank all contributors who generously gave and responded. The workers of Frankfort are all very enthusiastic over the fine response on the part of the various societies, clubs and churches.

EVEN DOGS NOW GET ARMY OFFICERS TITLES

The following dogs have been enlisted in the War Dog Fund by their owners of Frankfort: Seaman "Penny" Hedges, Private "Butch" Nieland, Pvt. "Larry" Bickley, Wave "Skipper" Sangmeister and Wac "Ribs" Balchowsky.

"Private Rags" is the first enlistee from Frankfort and was appointed as official recruiting officer for the War Dog fund, sponsored by Dogs for Defense, Inc. "Rags" is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bennett.

James M. Auston, chairman of the War Dog fund, expressed belief that "Rags" can enlist a number of his doggy pals, through their owners, in this phase of the war effort. The drive will also encourage the enlistment of the non-combatant 4F dogs in the War Dog fund so that they can support their canine brothers at the front.

Dog owners who enroll their dogs will be given enlistment blanks to be filled out, with money enclosed to cover the rank desired. Acknowledgement will be made of the contribution by receipt of a certificate of rank, tag for the collar, and a sticker for the window of their home.

The War Dog Fund is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Donations vary from $1 for private or seaman, $5 for sergeant or chief petty officer, to $100 for generals or admirals. Persons wishing to contribute may notify Mrs. E. Bennett.

CHANGE IN POSTAL RATES IN EFFECT SUNDAY

This Sunday the postal rates will be changed as follows: All rural route stamps will be changed from 2 cents to 3 cents. Letters mailed in villages will remain at 1 cent. Air mail letters will be raised from 6 cents to 8 cents.

MOKENA CIVIC GROUP GIVES $25 TO RED CROSS WAR FUND DRIVE

A very small crowd attended the bingo party sponsored by the Mokena Civic Association for the purpose of raising funds for the local Red Cross chapter held Saturday night at the Mokena school gym. The net proceeds from this party came to $21 but the Association added $4 to this amount and turned over $25 to the local Red Cross treasurer.

After the party last Saturday night a plaid jacket was found in the gym and the owner may have some by calling at the home of Mr. Robert Schlacks, president of the Civic Association.

Mokena Reaches 70 Per Cent of Red Cross Quota

The Mokena Red Cross chairman reports 70 percent of the total quota in up to Wednesday night with a number of canvassers not yet reporting. A meeting will be held at the Red Cross Work room Friday for officers and Volunteer workers for the War Fund drive.

The following paragraphs were taken from a letter written home by one of our Mokena servicemen, Bob Frisch. "The Red Cross is swell to us. They provide a good place to sleep and good food when we are on leave and they come to our outfit every few days, with free coffee and donuts. They surely are all for the Soldier, over here. Many other boys from this locality can't say enough for the Red Cross. Therefore it behooves every one in this vicinity to be sure "The Red Cross is at his side" by contributing generously to the War Fund drive.

FRANKFORT LIONS CLUB HEAR GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF WAR TIME WASHINGTON

The Frankfort Lions Club enjoyed a very fine dinner in the Methodist church parlors Tuesday evening which was followed with a most interesting talk by Glenn Folkers of Frankfort, secretary of the National Rural Letter Carriers Association on his trips to Washington, D. C., in the interest of legislation for the Association.

He gave a most comprehensive account of the manner in which a bill is introduced in the Senate or the House and of all the efforts entailed to get a bill through both houses. In the letter carriers case they had a bill pending for the past nine months asking for an additional 1 cent per mile for maintenance upkeep, and did not seem to get any where with it, but when the right strings were pulled and the right politicians were contacted the bill was passed in a few minutes.

Mr. Folkers further described the national capital as a monument to our democracy and stated there was something about the building which made you feel that this nation has something worth fighting for.

He declared that wartime Washington is just a madhouse. There are no accommodations at any hotel unless reservations have been made well in advance and then the reservations are only good for five days. He painted a vivid word picture of the great government buildings including the Pentagon, said to be the largest office building in the world. This structure covers 40 acres and its thousands of offices are devoted chiefly to military affairs.

Taxis, autos and buses run right into this building which is characterized as a city within four walls.

In order to provide rooms for girl employees, the government has built dormitories and still the rooms are so crowded that often three persons sleep in one bed.

Traffic congestion is terrific and taxis will not haul less than six persons to a load.

Cost of food is appalling and ceiling prices are virtually unknown. The White House, Cafeteria does however, serve bean soup for which it is noted, Mr. Folkers stated.

Admittance to government offices is only by pass and no one can get within two blocks of the White House due to a very elaborate guard system.

The Lions Club voted to donate $15 to the local Red Cross War Fund drive.

Two new members were added to the membership roll the same night.

Mrs. Clarke bequeathed her 10 acre farm and buildings located on Wolf Road south of Mokena to Mr. and Mrs. Scheiblich. Mrs. Clarke set forth in her will that Mr. and Mrs. Scheiblich and Mr. Scheiblich's mother while she was alive, took her in when no else would and gave her a home and cared for her.

Mr. Doctor Helps A Doctor To Render Aid To Wounded Soldier

Pvt. John Ross Fox whose home is in the DuLugach Subdivision along 159th St. just west of Wolf Rd. found that a soldier can get wounded at home as well as on a roaring battle front, when he met with a freak accident shortly after he arrived home on furlough last Wednesday.

Fox, home on furlough to visit his wife and child, shot himself in the left foot when a shotgun fell to the floor in his home. He telephoned Dr. E. G. McMahon at Mokena to come to his aid. When the doctor got up to 159th street he found the pavement was under water so deep that the automobile could not be driven thru. The doctor then called on Amil Doctor, a farmer residing nearby on Wolf Rd. for assistance to reach the wounded soldier. Mr. Doctor hitched a cart behind his tractor and hauled Dr. McMahon thru the flood waters to the Fox home. After giving the injured man first aid, Dr. McMahon placed him in the cart and Mr. Doctor hauled him and the physician thru the flood waters back to Dr. McMahon's car. The latter took Fox to Silver Cross hospital in Joliet for further treatment and from there he was later taken to a base army hospital. It took over three hours to negotiate the trip to and back from the Fox home and to the hospital.

TO HOLD SERIES OF CLINICS AT MOKENA SCHOOL

Plans were recently completed for a series of clinics to be held at Mokena school for the benefit of both children and adults in need of immunization against diphtheria or smallpox. The program is being sponsored by the Mokena School Board and Health Department. Inoculations will be administered by Dr. E. G. McMahon.

The first clinic in the series is scheduled for Monday afternoon, March 27 at 1:30 at which time Schick tests will be given.

On Thursday, at 1:30 p.m. March 30, these tests will be read and the first injection of diphtheria toxoid will be administered.

The second injection of diphtheria toxoid is scheduled for Friday, April 21 at 1:30 p.m., at which time smallpox vaccinations will be given also.

For the benefit of those unfamiliar with the program, the Schick test determines whether or not one is immune to diphtheria. Diphtheria toxoid is an immunizing agent and should be given to all persons found to be susceptible to the disease.

Those children under 12 years of age who have never received inoculations are usually susceptible to diphtheria and, therefore, will not be given the Schick test previous to receiving the immunizing injections against the disease.

Smallpox vaccinations should be given to all those persons who have not been previously vaccinated successfully, and to those who have not been vaccinated within the last five years. A fee of 25 cents will be charged or each injection, test or vaccination.

TINLEY WOMAN'S CLUB ENJOYS TENTH ANNIVERSARY PARTY AND DINNER

Forty members and friends of the Tinley Park Woman's Club journeyed to The Swedish Club in Chicago Wednesday where the 10th anniversary of the founding of the club was celebrated. At noon a dinner was served in one of the club's dining rooms which was made livelier by the colorful surroundings, and which was preceded by a very tasty smorgasbord.

Following the dinner the group adjourned to a club room where the regular meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. Brown Campbell. Mrs. B. Eichelberg reported for the nominating committee; Mrs. H. Freitag and Mrs. Aden were appointed to the auditing committee and the president expressed her appreciation to those who helped her in making this celebration the pleasant success that it was.

Mrs. Roy Hannum, program chairman was in charge of that portion of the procedure and in a few fitting words, she spoke of the value of the club and what it has meant to its members. Mrs. Hannum then lighted a candle for the founder of the club, Mrs. W. B. Combs; and then proceeded to light one for each year served by the presidents, with understanding and appreciative remarks of each as follows: Mrs. Chas. Nielsen, Mrs. Omar Ebenhack, Mrs. W. W. Kester, Mrs. Frank Baldwin, Mrs. Harry Beggs, and Mrs. E. B. Campbell.

Mrs. Nielsen, Mrs. Ebenhack, Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Campbell being the only presidents present, responded and told of the work of that office when they served the club.

Opportunity was given each member to present their guests among which was J. Bradley Griffin, presented by Mrs. L. G. Bruder and who was introduced by Mrs. Hannum. To say that Mr. Griffin was enjoyed seems not sufficient, for in his dramatic way he brought forth various characters in a most realistic way. Among the many readings the speaker gave were: "For His Return"; Donna Marie Crane's "The Changing World"; contemporary thoughts taken from Shakespeare which was applicable to "Hitler"; Goebels, Goering, Mussolini, radio news, rationing, priorities. Also Donald Blanding's "For Rent"; "A Fair Exchange"; Weaver; "Less Information Please" McGinley; from some of Mr. J. Bradley-Griffin's recordings, he read, "The Prophet" and "Lord Let Me Be a Giver". Then in honor of his father, Dr. J. Preston Bradley, which he gave at the latter's 30th anniversary in the ministry, he read "Love" by Felman among which was the following thought: "I Love you not for what you are, but what I am when I am with you".

Birthdays Same Date As Ground Breaking of Plant

Twin Mokena boys, Ronald and Raymond Haag, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Haag, were among the twelve lucky three year olds to celebrate St. Patrick's Day last Friday with a visit to the plant where their fathers turn out planes to win the war. They are children of employees of the Melrose Park Buick aviation engine plant who were born during the week of the plant's ground breaking March 17, 1941.

The Mokena twins were born on March 17, 1941. The Buick Company presented each one with a $25 war bond.

Mr. and Mrs. Haag together with the parents of the other children present, enjoyed an inspection trip thru the huge plant where Mr. Haag is employed in the tool department, but had not seen all of the big factory.

While the parents were being shown thru the plant, the youngsters had a hilariously happy time in the plant's cafeteria enjoying goodies of various kinds at a sham-rock shaped table and seeing movies of animated cartoons in colors. Taken all in all, the parents and children enjoyed this St. Patrick's Day immensely.

For the second week in succession the league has changed the challenges were two games behind the leaders and each swept the series from the leaders. Last week the Oilers took the lead when they defeated the Paperhangers and this week the V-Eighters beat the Oilers to take possession of first place. The Oilers and V-Eighters put on a nip and tuck battle although neither team displayed any unusual bowling.

The Paperhangers continued to roll in a slump as they dropped two games to the Bankers. They have now lost seven games out of the last nine although they are still only one game out of the lead.

The Robins continued to roll brilliantly as they moved up into striking distance of first place as they beat the Smokers two out of three games. The Robins are now two games out and have the Paperhangers and the Oilers to beat to gain their objective.

Looks like two hectic nights as the four two teams are bunched with two games separating first from fourth position.

STATE DEPARTMENT
STYMIES ROCKEFELLER

Aides to Nelson Rockefeller think the administration blundered in failing to defend itself better against the charges of Latin American extravagance made by Republican Senator Hugh Butler of Nebraska. Inside fact is that Rockefeller prepared a rebuttal to Butler's blast against our Good Neighbor spending, but it was killed by the state department.

The rebuttal had been prepared as an article for Reader's Digest, under Rockefeller's by-line. Rockefeller showed it to two advisers, John Dickey and Anna Rosenberg, who both okayed it. Then it was sent to the state department.

There, Hull's public relations adviser, Michael McDermott, advised against letting young Rockefeller step out as defender of the government's foreign policy. He urged that this prerogative should be reserved for Cordell Hull alone.

So the article was killed, and the next issue of the Reader's Digest, instead of carrying a government rebuttal, carried another blast by Butler, with an editor's note saying that Rockefeller had been given a chance to reply, but declined.

So readers all over the country are beginning to think Senator Butler may be right.

LOS ANGELES STRIKE

The army, which seized the Los Angeles Water and Power system as a result of a strike by electrical workers, hopes to turn it back to the municipal authorities about the time this appears in print.

When the labor department reports on this strike, its figures will show that 2,300 men went out. Real fact, however, is that many times that number were thrown out of work by the stoppage of light and power.

Reason the war department stepped in was that the strike had closed: 84 aircraft plants; 38 navy plants; 14 army service forces plants (ordnance and quartermaster).

Though the general public knows only of such prominent cases as the army seizure of the railroads, actually the army is being forced to take over many properties tied up by strikes. It has become a pattern. Labor unions make use of it to threaten management.

Ten mills were tied up in Fall River, Mass., because of a mere jurisdictional dispute between an independent union and the CIO. The army was obliged to step in, and is still in. The same thing happened at Peabody and Salem, Mass., in a dispute in the leather industry between an independent union and the CIO. Also, the army has been obliged to take over the Western Electric plants in Baltimore because of the notorious "back-house" dispute.

War department officials are getting worried over this trend. They have become the Department of Emergency Labor. They don't like it. They want to fight the war, not fight labor.

ON THE AIR FRONT

Recently, U. S. fighter planes set up a new record by penetrating a distance of 550 miles into Europe—1,100 miles round trip.

This has been published, but what may not be realized is that fighters are working this run in relays. Three different teams of fighters go out toward the target at different times, using the following pattern:

1. The first team goes out with the bombers, and protects them halfway to the target, meeting and engaging the German fighters.

2. The second team, starting later, catches up with the bombers at the halfway mark and escorts them the rest of the way to the target. Thus, they arrive at the halfway mark without having to combat Germans all the way, and so have fresh supplies of gas and ammunition, while the first team, with exhausted supplies, turns back.

3. The third team starts still later, and meets the bombers at the target. Here they drop their belly tanks, take over the hot fighting above the target. With fresh supplies, they relieve the second team, which turns home.

Generally, the first team consists of Thunderbolts, the second team of the faster Lightnings, and the third team of the still faster Mustangs. Since all fighters are faster than bombers, they can go out and catch up with the bombers at any agreed point.

This technique has greatly extended the range of fighters and greatly increased the protection they afford for the bombers.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

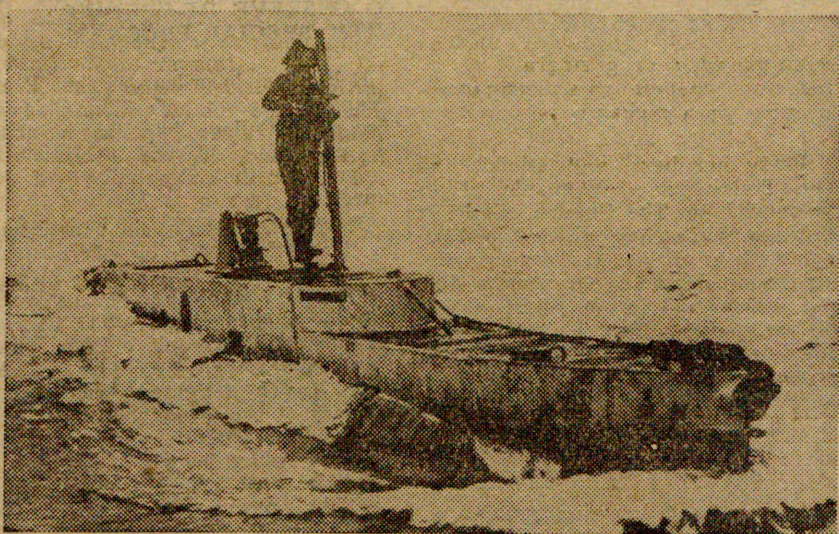

Ed Stettinius says the Soviet forces have been able to maintain good communications, partly because we have sent them 189,000 field telephones and over 670,000 miles of wire—enough to go around the world 27 times. . . . Equally impressive is the quantity of barbed wire lend-leased to the Soviets—216,000 miles of it. "It is significant," says Stettinius, "that after the fall of 1942, the Soviet army stopped asking for barbed wire in large quantities."

Great Britain's Mighty Midget

This picture shows the recently famous British three-man Midget submarine of the type used in the attack on the German battleship Tirpitz, which was in hiding in a Norwegian fjord. The mighty little subs successfully launched torpedoes at their giant enemy. There is every reason to suppose that the Tirpitz was seriously damaged. She was injured under water and has been ineffective since.

What Capture of Admiralty Islands Means

The capture of Momote airdrome on Los Negros island in the Admiralty group by U. S. troops places the Allied forces in a strategic position to strike at the enemy in many of his Southwest Pacific strongholds. Planes and carrier task forces can make raids from the new base. Arrows show distances these units would have to travel to Palau, Truk, Guam and Philippines. Jap forces at Rabaul, Kavieng and in New Guinea (black area) are flanked.

Want a Whale? Take Your Pick

Sixty-five whales of the blackfish type washed ashore at Bull's Island off the mainland of the coast of South Carolina, about 25 miles from Charleston. The size of the whales ranges from 6 to 22 feet in length and the average weight is estimated at approximately 700 pounds. Lieut. E. Lott of the U. S. coast guard is shown among the whales.

IF YOU can answer the following queries strictly on the level, without looking to the answers, we'll be more than glad to award you the first sprig of dogwood blossom when spring arrives.

1. Query—What famous fighter never wore a headgear in training nor any form of mouth or teeth protection either in training or in actual contest?

Answer—Gene Tunney. "Never in my ring career," Gene told me, "have

I ever worn any form of training headgear or any protection for the mouth. I wanted to know what to do when I was hit and hurt. You can't learn anything like this wearing a protecting headgear—or a guard for your mouth and teeth. I was hit around the head more than once with punches that jolted—and I had a bleeding mouth more than once in training. But I never believed in any form of protection in training that didn't apply to an actual contest." Did you know that one?

2. Query—What great golfer in a National Open was just off the green in two, only ten yards away from the pin, and then took five more strokes to get his seven, without being trapped or bunkered, and still won the major crown?

Answer—Bobby Jones at Hoylake. Two terrific shots had left him just ten yards from the pin on a par five hole. The pin was on a mound. His short chip shot ran up the slope, stopped and rolled back off the green. His next chip shot slipped past, over the crest, the ball dribbling 30 feet downhill. Three putts cost him a seven where he had an easy four in sight. Yet he still went on to win.

3. Query—Gene Sarazen has often said you can't take a seven and win an open. What golfer took three sevens in his final round and still won by more than a dozen strokes?

Answer—Bobby Jones at Winged Foot in 1929, in the U. S. Open. His three sevens left him tied with Espinosa. A day later he crushed Espinosa by 23 strokes in the 36-hole playoff.

Maybe You Can Do Better

4. Query—What heavyweight champion has been knocked down more than any other heavyweight champion, and in turn has knocked down or knocked out more challengers?

Answer—Joe Louis. Louis was knocked down many times before he was champion by Max Schmeling. He was knocked down by Jim Braddock, Tony Galento and Buddy Baer. But his list of knockdowns and knockouts included most of his opponents.

5. Query—What famous heavyweight knocked his opponent down—then stooped over and lifted him to his feet, to the cheers of the crowd for a sportsmanlike act—then knocked him down again as he held him up, to the boos of the crowd?

Answer—Jim Corbett when he fought Joe Choynski on a California barge. Choynski fought barehanded, Corbett with skin-tight gloves.

6. Query—This is one you should not miss. What golfer won a major open championship with a hole in one?

Answer—Jock Hutchison at St. Andrews in 1921. His hole in one gave him the chance to tie young Roger Wethered, a British amateur, who subsequently ruined his chances by stepping on his ball as he walked backward to keep the right line.

Baseball Oddities

7. Query—(Here's one that will stop you colder than a mackerel on an iceberg)—What pitcher in a well-known league pitched a no-hit game and was beaten 5 to 0?

Answer—King Bailey, pitching for Selma in the Southern league. That same season a pitcher by the name of McIntyre in the same league allowed 16 hits and won his game 1 to 0. Figure that one out.

8. Here's a question from Joe E. Brown—"What big league ball player stole first base?"

Answer—"Germany" Schaefer did," the 100,000 mile warfront traveler tells me. "Germany was on first with a runner on third. He stole second, hoping to draw a throw. He didn't. So he promptly stole first again. There was a wild squawk and the rule was changed next year, but for all that Schaefer was credited with the steal."

9. Query—(This one is easy)—What pitcher had the greatest number of strikeouts and shutouts?

Answer—Old Barney, the Coffeyville Express—meaning Walter Johnson.

10. Query—Who was the first football player to hide the football under his jersey and then, unnoticed, run for a touchdown?

Answer—Tick Tichenor of Auburn, playing against Vanderbilt around 1896. He faked being hurt, fell to the ground, tucked the ball away, ran 60 yards and won the game 9 to 6.

Pelicans' Paradise Lost;
Newcomers Save Situation

For many years Monterey, a picturesque California coast town, was a pelicans' paradise. As the fishermen cleaned their fish they flung the offal to the birds, which grew fat, lazy, and contented. Now, however, the offal is utilized. When the change came, the pelicans grew gaunt and thin, and slowly starved to death. They had forgotten how to fish!

The problem was solved by importing pelicans accustomed to foraging for themselves. The newcomers immediately began fishing. Before long every hungry pelican in port followed suit, and the famine was ended.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT

Authorities expect that Latin-American countries will contribute 35 to 40 thousand tons of crude rubber during 1944. In 1941 the U. S. and Canada used 800,000 tons of rubber, and current requirements are larger.

The Quartermaster Corps has developed a rubber and canvas Army boot for tropical wear. The sole contains both crude and reclaimed rubber, and is not affected by jungle moisture and soil chemicals.

Over seven billion passengers were transported by motor bus in 1942, compared with about four and a half billion in 1940, reflecting the curtailment of passenger car use by rubber conservation.

For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood. You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder. W.N.U. FEATURES

THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. The ground is covered with the skeletons of U. S. planes. No longer safe to sleep in barracks, because Japs are photographing Clark Field, cots are moved into a cornfield, which is later bombed by Japs. They evacuate to the island of Mindanao. Harry Schreiber, the navigator, now takes up the story, telling how two Fortresses out on a mission to get a row of Jap transports are attacked by a swarm of Zeros. They crash land in a rice paddy on Masbate Island, buy an outrigger canoe, sail to Isle of Panay and later get to Australia.

CHAPTER VII

"Well, it was nice, for a few days, to be out of danger—to start getting our dozen planes overhauled."

"As quick as we could, we began flying missions. Each Fortress had brought out about fifteen men from Del Monte, and they got to work putting the planes back into shape. But the missions were terribly long. It was seventeen hundred miles from Darwin back to Del Monte—almost as far as from New York to Denver. We'd leave Darwin in the morning, fly all day, land at Del Monte after dark to be safe from the Japs, service the plane, eat, catch a little nap, and then gas up in time to be off for an early morning bombing of the Jap invasion fleet off Luzon. Then back to Del Monte—it was daylight now and risky as hell, so get in quick, gas up, load bombs, and get the hell out fast and away to an afternoon target, coming back toward Del Monte in the darkness, thank God, when no Jap pursuits are hanging around, arriving about midnight, a cat nap again, gas up, and you're off for Australia."

"Think of the pilots and crews going through that grind day after day. You might fly eighteen hours straight and be out of the cockpit for only one of them."

"And yet the thing we dreaded most was Christmas. It was right ahead of us now—Christmas in defeat and on this barren, hot, dusty desert field, with no word or mail from home and no way to get word back to them. We'd send cables we knew would never be answered, because we could give no address."

"I'll put my Christmas up against the one you had," said Frank, going on with his story. "We were all feeling low. We knew there would be no letters or packages or even cables for us, so it was natural that on this hot, dry, dusty, sun-scorched Christmas Day some of us should wander over to the Australians' radio shack, just to see what little word from home we could pick up on the air."

"I should say that part of us were gone on a mission into the Philippines; two Forts, including George Schaezel, and they now should be on that dreary, nine-hour drag back to Batchelor Field. We hoped none of them would be shot down on Christmas Day."

"The Australians were damned nice to us. They let us watch them open their packages and handed us their Christmas cards to read, and then they'd say, 'What part of the States are you from, Yank?' so we could tell them about our own families and wives or best girls if we wanted to—and most of us did. But we kept wondering about that mission, although we didn't talk about it. And of course we didn't know they had run into serious trouble, hit by Zeros at high altitude, and that Schaezel's plane during this Christmas Day fight had been given a burst of machine-gun fire right through his radio compartment. Sergeant Killian, his radio operator, was shot through the top of the head as he was helping the gunners reload—picking up new ammunition cans full of .50-caliber bells and handing them up, and taking back the empty cans, while the gunners pounded away at the Zeros."

"Two others had been badly wounded by the same burst, and since this was at high altitude, it was very serious. Because maybe the boy topples over so that his oxygen mask falls off. There isn't much you can do for a wounded man during combat at high altitude. When you have wounded men aboard, you try to get down to at least 10,000 feet as soon as you can, so they won't be under the strain of breathing through oxygen masks."

"But there were Zeros still below them. One of the Fort's prime defense weapons is altitude, and George knew if he broke away from formation and dived down alone, he stood a very good chance of being picked off."

"So he did the right thing—stayed with the formation, only it was a hell of a hard decision to make on Christmas Day, with those poor wounded men in back, fighting for breath in the high air."

"We knew nothing of this yet, but already we were feeling pretty low, and the Australian radio operator was twiddling his dials trying to get us a program from the States so we wouldn't be homesick. We hoped maybe we'd get just a homely description of what kind of a Christmas Day it was in a typical American town that might be any of ours, and how the snow crunched under the feet of the people walking up on porches to deliver Christmas packages, and maybe hear the real American voices of some real American girls in a Christmas choir singing 'Holy Night' or 'O Little Town of Bethlehem' or some of the other old-time songs."

"What we got instead was a lot of politicians doing their stuff on war aims. They were from all over the world, sounding off all over the dial, and we argued with those Australian kids as to which ones were the corniest, theirs or ours. They insisted theirs were, but we couldn't agree, because ours were all stuffed full of roast goose, optimism, plum pudding, hard sauce, and production figures."

"But something was coming in over the CW radio (Continuous Wave, or Dot-Dash) and the Australian with the earphones on, after writing it down, instead of sending it in to his commanding officer gave me a queer embarrassed look and handed it to me. And my heart thumped, because I thought it just might possibly be from Margo, although I didn't see how it could be."

"It was from Schaezel. He'd waited until he flew out of the danger zone before breaking radio silence. He said he'd be in after dark with one body aboard and to have the ambulance on the stand-by at the field. That meant there were more wounded. It finished Christmas for us. We didn't say much, and neither did the Australians. But pretty soon one by one we got up and wandered out of the hut."

And my heart thumped because I thought possibly it might be from Margo."

"When Schaezel got in, his plane was so badly shot up that we decided to call it a wreck. It was a toss-up between his plane and Lee Coats', which was also full of bullet holes, but looking them both over, we decided Schaezel's was somewhat the worse. We just had to have a wreck on the field to serve as a spare-parts reservoir to keep the other planes in the air. The old Swoose, here," and he jerked his thumb backward, "still has those tail surfaces we took off that plane. We needed everything, but most of all, we needed bomb-bay gas tanks."

"Of course we were in terrible shape. The old 19th Bombardment Group had lost two-thirds of its original strength in three weeks, and we were now reduced to about a dozen planes, about enough for a decent squadron. But there was one hopeful fact: of the two downed and we had lost, only two—Colin's and Jack's—had been shot down in combat by the Japanese. The rest had been blown up on the ground or, like Wheeler's plane, had been wrecked on the beach to save the crew when it didn't have the range to get home."

"And just about the time we were adding up this score and wondering what would happen to us next we found out, for without warning General Brereton landed on the field, and we were immediately summoned to a meeting in Operations."

"He's a tough, quick, cocky, fighting little Air Force officer who doesn't like to sit down when he's laying out plans or giving orders, and standing there before us, his shoulders reared back, he lined us out."

"He told us the United States Army Air Force of the Far East, of which he was commander, was moving all its bombers to Java, and at once. Its main base would be on a field near the city of Malang. From there we would operate out of advanced bases already prepared by the Dutch on the outlying islands of Borneo and the Celebes. From these our first missions would all be concentrated on breaking up an immense concentration of Jap transports which was gathering at Davao Bay, on the southern tip of the Philippines."

"But as he talked we got curious. Just how big was this American Air Force of the Far East which the General commanded, and whose task it was to smash the Japanese in the Philippine Islands so they couldn't reach out to the Dutch East Indies? The 19th had started out as a Group, commanded by a colonel. Its strength was now practically one squadron, an adequate command for a major in peacetime. Just how many Groups would this two-star General have at his command for this four-star task ahead?"

"But there was big news for me. Ever since the loss of Old 99 I had been a planeless pilot—a kind of ghost walking with the living, a head without a body."

"But now Lee Coats was to go with the General to Brisbane as engineering officer, and I was to take over his plane and crew for the Java war. Now at last was my chance to settle the score for Old 99."

"From Australia to Java is a full day's work even for a Fortress," Frank went on, "but the weather was fine, and all of us were feeling great. The ocean was a deep blue, and we were constantly passing over islands, green with jungle growth, which are practically steppingstones connecting Asia with Australia."

"The last one of all was maybe the most beautiful—the famous island of Bali, just before you get to Java—and as I saw it coming ahead over the horizon, I couldn't help thinking about those pictures of it you used to see on the round-the-world cruise folders. Always on the cover was a color photograph of a beautiful golden-brown sixteen-year-old girl with a wicker basket on her head and a printed cotton sarong gathered low around her hips and nothing much in between except a completely unself-conscious smile."

"I was feeling pretty good, and I guess the crew was too. You see, we'd been on the alert for six weeks and not so much as an hour's leave for them to go into any town for even a glass of beer."

"Java in the late afternoon was as beautiful as anyone had ever promised it would be—rich green velvet, except where the sloping sun gleamed on the rice paddies, or burned the standing water gold against the soot-black mud."

"We flew over the big seaport city of Surabaya and straight on toward the smaller city of Malang sixty-six miles away, which was to be our base. To get there you have to climb a little and then enter through a narrow mountain pass, which usually is filled with clouds in the afternoon, like a thick cotton stopper in a bottle. At least later it served to keep the Zeros out."

"They'd told me the field was well camouflaged, but because they'd laid it out for me carefully on the map I had no trouble in finding it. It was a better job of camouflaging than anything we'd ever dreamed of in the Philippines. Looking down on it from altitude, you took it to be just an ordinary tilled field. There was what looked like a cornfield almost across the runway, and in addition a fake railway line crossing it. I even had difficulty in picking out the hangar roofs, so carefully were they painted into the tropical vegetation."

"We crossed it, turned, circled, and landed. The Dutch weren't even using their radio to bring us in for fear of giving away the location of that beautifully hidden field. They brought us in with a flash gun, and luckily I could show my new crew the precision-type landing required on that grass field which was later to prove tough as hell. We came in in the usual soft Javanese afternoon rainstorm, and of course I didn't dare apply brakes as you would on macadam. I was to find it was a tricky job getting off and on that slippery turf with a full load of bombs."

"The boys were of course in a lather to get into town, but first there had to be the usual pilots' meeting, and it's always the same—I don't care who the officer is, Captain, Major, or Lieutenant Colonel, he's got to stand up there and dish out the old college pep talk about how we're here to do this and that while the boys are snorting to get into town."

"Only this one wasn't so bad. Because at last we were going to do what we had for years been trained to do with our Fortresses. When those reinforcements came streaming in we could go out in big formations and drop a pattern that meant something."

"Later they were to find that Dutch dating wasn't as simple as it looked, because the first three or four times you had to take Mama and Papa along."

"At the end of dinner, before they left, we'd all stood up and drunk just one New Year's toast—to the memory of all those guys we'd known so well back in the islands who couldn't be with us now, and a score the Air Force had to settle in their behalf. Java seemed fat and lush and peaceful, but I knew just ahead of us was terribly hard work, long missions, hitting again and again if we were to hold the Japs back until those thousand American planes arrived."

Old Boots as Mail Boxes
In Early Days of America

Old boots were the first individual post office mail "boxes" in America, owing to the scarcity of nails and the high cost of wood. Soles of the boots were fastened to the wall and the mail was deposited in the roomy boot legs by the postmaster.

Envelopes weren't used in the United States until 1842. They came from France and for a long time were frowned upon as an affectation. People of "good taste" folded the letter sheet and either fastened the edges with sealing wax, or sewed them together around the outside.

Admirals may be admirable, but that isn't where the word comes from. It comes from an old Arabic word "amir-al" meaning "commander of." That's what the Admiral is, the top-ranking officer in the Navy. Top-ranking cigarette with our Navy men is Camel—the favorite, too with men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard, according to actual sales records from their service stores. Camels are a top-ranking gift, too. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are. —Adv.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

Dear Friends:

It's rather hard to express one's true feeling using so inadequate a medium as a mere letter, but under the circumstances its the best I can do.

To be so far away and in my case practically unknown to you, it is a great pleasure to know I am so well thought of and so generously remembered.

I received your package sometime ago but due to circumstances beyond my control, was unable to acknowledge it until now. I can assure you that every bit of it was most thoroughly enjoyed.

I hope sincerely to have the opportunity of expressing my appreciation to you in person some day.

Hoping you all had a most enjoyable Holiday season, I am,

Sincerely,

Lt. James J. Devlin

Dear Friends:

With all the lovely weather we've been quite busy filling the sky with airplanes.

I've been doing a lot of traveling this month, hence the long delayed letter thanking you for your very lovely Christmas package. Christmas found me "weathered in" in a small town in California and I had the good fortune of being invited to my girl friends home to spend the Holiday. It made Christmas more pleasant than I expected, this being the first one I've been severed from my parents apron strings.

I've had some lovely trips to the east coast and was able to spend a day with my brother and his wife in Georgia. I met many of his friends and had a grand time visiting around the field. The life we lead is very exciting and we do meet many interesting people.

One day in Dallas as I was coming in for a landing I turned around and saw a ship too close behind me for comfort. Much to surprise I later discovered that the Pilot was none other than Robert Taylor. He is handsome girls.

Last week I co-piloted on a B-25 trip and a couple days ago I was at the controls of a B-24 for 2 hours. We just don't know what's coming next. That's what makes it so exciting. We do all our traveling back to base on the airlines and I've finally gotten to the point where I trust the pilots. Sometimes they let us sit up in front with them.

I am going to stop gold bricking now and get to the airport and see if I can help jack the ceiling up so we can be on our way.

Thank you again for your thoughtfulness.

Sincerely,

Addie Wolak, Long Beach, Cal.

Dear Friends:

I am very sorry that I did not write to you any sooner, but we've been so busy lately that we don't get much time for better writing.

We've been doing some very hard jungle training and it really kept us busy most of the day.

I am very sorry to hear about the accident of Lulu Rogers as she did so much for the boys in Service. Yes I still get the Tinley Park Times and really enjoy reading it.

I sure would like to get a package for Easter of candy, nuts etc. that you said you are sending to the boys.

I guess I will end this letter as the lights go out in a few minutes.

My private war and how I am winning it!

I AM A GENERAL

My family is my army. My home is my arsenal, household appliances my artillery. With these forces and armaments, I am helping to destroy the hateful menace of the Axis.

WASTE IS ONE OF MY ENEMIES

On the unforgettable day of Pearl Harbor, I declared a private war of my own—a war on Waste, ally of the enemy. I make every calory and vitamin I buy count. I take good care of the things I have.

THE BLACK MARKET IS ANOTHER

I refuse to pay more than the ceiling price for anything. I accept no rationed goods without paying coupons in full. I boycott those I know to be Black Market traders.

HERE'S MY CAMPAIGN PLAN

My strategy is simple . . . Buy only what I need. Grow a victory garden. Can fresh foods. Make appliances serve better and longer by methods gleaned from Public Service Company's free book on their care and use. Save every penny possible in War Stamps and Bonds—so that I can speed victory now, enjoy more of its benefits later.

Pfc. Robert Benson has been transferred to the air base at Pueblo, Colo. His mother, Mrs. Bernard Benson left today to visit him.
Pvt. Arthur Hurley is now stationed at Loreado, Texas.

Letters From Our Boys
I know this will be a surprise to you but here and now I have decided its due time for me to get this letter on its way. I have been writing this letter since Jan. 1st, so Mrs. Clark, I believe I better start now, don't you think?
First of all I want to thank you ladies of the Service Club for the wonderful Christmas box I received. It was very nice and the contents were well taken care of, as my buddies were a great help. In this army or any other branch of the service, the boys share and share alike when a box comes from home. I also enjoy the News-Bulletin. Thanks again to the organization you women folk have started back home. I think I can say that almost every one of us turn to that page first to see what is happening to the boys from home.
I guess that just about takes care of the Christmas presents and the paper. But just to complete everything I received a very nice box of candy the other day for my birthday and of course it came from the 'Women's Service Club'. It was sure good and everyone says thanks to you and a big thank you from me.
Well I guess I better sign off because as a letter writer, I'm not so good and please forgive me for being tardy with my thanks. You know a soldier puts off his writing until the last minute, so again I say, thanks, and God Bless you all.
Best Wishes,
S-Sgt. Emory H. Ahlborn, Ft. Custer, Mich.

Primary Room:
Barbara Geuther is back in school and feeling fine after her visit to the hospital.

Mary Ann Rinke provided the primary room with some very artistic scenery this month. Mary Ann painted scenes on wallpaper.

The third grade science class enjoyed hearing Helen Geuther's explanation on how plants stored food. Helen brought an onion to school and placed it in a glass of water. One week later the class discovered it had grown 9 1/2 inches tall.

Intermediate Room:

The geography maps made by grades 5 and 6 were on display in the Intermediate room all last week. These maps showed some exceptionally fine work done by the students. We were happy to see the interest in this work shown by pupils in the other rooms throughout the school, as many of them came in to see the display. The map winners were: Marianne Whitlark and Marcia Larson, Mary Ann Dunn, David Krapp and Bruce Gaddis, James Needham and Earle Stellwagen.

Many of the pupils have finished reading the required number of reading circle books for the year.

Grade four is working on a booklet about Holland for English. Both the pupils and Mrs. Ferguson are happy to see that the attendance is improving.
Jr. High School:

A meeting of the Literary Club was held Friday March 17 on the stage. The meeting was opened with the pledge of allegiance to the flag, followed by the singing of "God Bless America."

The Mokena Oilers scored an upset when they swept three games from the Papahangers, knocking them out of the lead and meanwhile taking command of first place. The strategy of co-captains, Burkhardt and Rauch of the Oilers so demoralized the Papahangers machine that they did not function all night and thereby giving the Oilers an easy victory.

The V-Eighters fell Robins by dropping the first two games before they could regain their composure and finally went on to win the last game. This left the V-Eighters in third place and the Robins in 4th place one game behind.

The Oilers swept 3 games from the once powerful Bankers. The Smokers are finally beginning to show signs of becoming the team that they were last season when they finished in 2nd place altho their chances of getting out of the cellar is slim. The Bankers are five games from 4th and five out of the cellar position with only nine games left, it appears they will wind up in 5th position.

Looks like three hectic nights for the four top teams as only three games separate the teams between first and fourth.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"That's really a great editorial you just read to us, Judge. Where did you say it appeared?"
"In 'The Stars and Stripes'... the newspaper of the U. S. Armed Forces in Europe. Kind of gives us folks back home something to think about, doesn't it, Bill?"
"It certainly does, Judge. Particularly the last paragraph. Would you mind reading that again?"
"Glad to, Bill. It says, 'We can remember the days of prohibition, when moonshine whiskey made quick fortunes for bootleggers, crooked politicians and dishonest police officials. As a result, we claim we know what we want in the way of liquor legislation and feel those at home should wait until we return before initiating further legislation on liquor control.'"

"Out of fairness to our boys over there fighting, Judge, how could we disobey such a wish?"

Victory Gardens

By G. L. Jordan,

Professor, Agricultural Economics, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Reports reaching us suggest that the interest in victory gardens is not as pronounced as a year ago. It would be a national catastrophe if certain current developments were to leave the impression that victory gardens are no longer needed and that we should have plenty of food without them. We shall have very small supplies of commercially canned fruits and vegetables available for civilian consumption if the armed forces use the quantities they have ordered canners to set aside for them and food will be one of our most critical war materials in 1944.

The soft winter and spring wheat areas have been hard hit by a drought condition since September. Between September 1, 1943 and January 31, 1944 the precipitation in Illinois was only 59 percent of normal. In January it was only 24 percent of normal. Fortunately, the 1944 crop will depend more upon precipitation during the spring and summer than the amount to date.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

I been rummaging in the World about Herbert Hoover. It was in fine print so maybe everybody has not seen it. It said that while Herbert was President of the USA, Secretary of Commerce, Food Administrator and Director of Belgium Relief, that all the money he received in all these jobs went to charities, or to help out on salaries of people working under him to whom the government paid less than he thought they were worth. Folks like that are scarce.

GREGORY, S. DAK.

Rural America in Cross Section

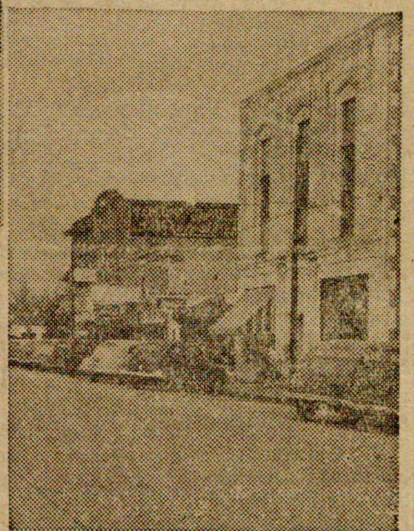

PAXTON, ILL.

In this final article of a series by Barrow Lyons, staff correspondent of Western Newspaper Union, he gives the graphic results of his swing through the nation to gather an impression of political and economic thinking in rural America. All of these pictures were taken by Mr. Lyons, and opinions expressed or quoted are either those of persons pictured or the writer's. They are not necessarily those of this newspaper.

Shown at left is E. C. Biggins, wheat farmer of Gregory, S. D., an early settler who "saw the land come up from nothing." Biggins, who is 67 years old, doesn't like to be told how much wheat to raise and what to do. He believes that many of the farmers around Gregory are spreading themselves too far, buying too many steers, sheep and hogs at prices that are too high. They are putting themselves on the spot for the coming deflation, Biggins believes—counting their chips too soon.

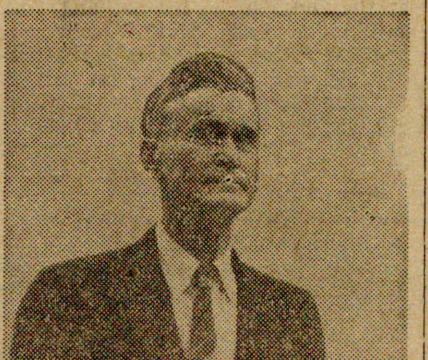

Sentiment in Benton, Arkansas, is strongly divided. Business men and farmers deeply resent the many controls and restrictions imposed by the New Deal, and assert Washington has bungled badly. The bauxite miners support the administration. Section of Benton's business district is shown at right.

Many farms in Ava, Mo., are changing hands, as indicated by these sale posters displayed in an Ava restaurant. These reflect the nation's current land turnover. George Mullins, Douglas county FSA supervisor (inset), has helped many farmers around Ava to rehabilitate themselves.

J. G. Saurenman, general foreman of the Rock Island roundhouse in Eldon, Iowa, finds this labor-dominated town a good place to live. It has excellent schools,

M. H. Bourne, editor emeritus Owensboro (Ky.) News-Herald, says Kentuckians don't like too much government control, but tobacco growers approve AAA program.

THE SACREDNESS OF LIFE (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT: Gen. 1:27, 28; Matt. 12:11, 12; Rom. 14:19-21; I Cor. 6:19, 20.
GOLDEN TEXT: Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit?—I Corinthians 6:19.

A high and ennobling concept of the value of human life is an important element in Christian thought. The Word of God always regards human life as sacred—a gift of God to be used for His glory, never to be exploited for gain or destroyed at will.

This important truth needs constant reiteration in a social order which is so shortsighted and sinful that it will permit the destruction of man through the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. The lesson has a real application to the liquor problem.

I. God Honored Man (Gen. 1:27, 28).

It should be of primary interest and concern to discover what the Maker and Lord thinks of His creation, man. He knows what is in man and if we learn of Him we may come to evaluate man aright.

1. He Made Him in His Own Image (v. 27).

The teaching of Scripture makes it clear that this image was not anything material or physical, but rather a likeness of personality. As God is a personal, moral, intelligent Being, so is man.

How tragic then that man will not only reject that grace, but will subject his God-given personality to the narcotic and destructive influence of alcohol.

Not only did God make man in His image, but—

2. He Gave Him Power and Authority (v. 28).

This is the very thing man is seeking, and here we learn that the only One who had a right to give it—God Himself—bestowed it upon man.

Having dominion over the entire earth, man is in a place of responsibility, not only for his own moral choices, but for the welfare of others. Think that over as it relates to the ever-growing liquor problem.

II. Man Should Honor Man (Matt. 12:11, 12; Rom. 14:19-21).

Since God has such a high regard for man, it is clear that we ought to have real respect for our fellow man. "Man's inhumanity to man" is often declared to be the world's greatest difficulty. It would not be so if God's Word were obeyed. Man would learn that—

1. He Should Recognize His Fellow Man's Value (Matt. 12:11, 12).

Property values are so well to the front in the thinking of all, that it requires no argument to convince anyone that a sheep that has fallen into a pit should be rescued. But the sad thing is that the man who would run for help to rescue a sheep in that predicament will hardly cast an interested glance at the drunk in the gutter, or lose a few minutes sleep over the girls who are going to hell by way of our countless taverns.

The plain fact is that we do not regard a man as of more value than a sheep. Many a neighborhood has been stirred to angry reprisal over the poisoning of a pet dog, but will let the liquor dealer poison men and women—all for a small license fee.

The man who loves his fellow man knows that—

2. He Should Sacrifice for His Fellow Man's Good (Rom. 14:19-21).

Paul here states a high principle of Christian consideration. He makes clear that man is his brother's keeper and must do nothing which will tempt his brother to do that which will harm him.

III. Man Should Honor Himself (I Cor. 6:19, 20).

Man is told not to think more highly of himself than he ought to think (Rom. 12:3), and that is good counsel. But at the same time he ought to think as highly of his own being as God does. He should recognize that—

1. His Body Is the Temple of the Holy Spirit (v. 19).

The Bible teaches that the moment a man believes in Christ his body becomes the dwelling place of the Holy Spirit. That means that he must never take that body in any place (such as a tavern) to do anything or partake of anything (like intoxicants) which would dishonor the Holy Spirit of God.

2. He Belongs to God (v. 20).

Men have been given a free will by God. He has given them the right of self-determination. That does not abrogate God's right to man's devotion and love.

The fact that we are free to choose should make us the more determined that the right choice should be made—that we shall glorify God in our bodies, which are His.

Does it take even a moment's thought to tell us that the violation of that body (and every bit of scientific evidence proves it to be a violation) by the use of alcohol is not only disobedient, but sinful rebellion against God.

Parson Found the Barber An Understanding Fellow

A clergyman was being shaved by a barber who had evidently become unnerved by the previous night's dissipation. Finally he cut the clergyman's chin. The latter looked up at the barber reproachfully, and said:

"You see, my good man, what comes of hard drinking."

"Yes, sir," the barber replied consolingly, "it sure makes the skin tender, don't it?"

Reunion on an Island

Guadalcanal is approximately 8,000 miles from Chicago, and it was there that A. Eliot Burnham (whose loyalty as an employee of the Rock Island Lines earned him the nickname of "Rocky") had a hand in defeating the Japs, and where he met, but here is the story according to Master Sergeant

"When the task of unloading the convoy was over on that unforgettable day, when we landed at Guadalcanal, most of the men assumed the horizontal for a much needed rest, but one private, A. Eliot Burnham, came to the C. P. and asked permission to try to contact his brother in the infantry. Traffic was light so the Colonel granted assent.

"The call went thru and the switchboard operator answered 'Service Company, Private Burnham speaking'. Eliot was all choked up and even the Colonel cleared his throat while the brother talked.

Suddenly Eliot turned and said, 'Sir my other brother in the Marines is on the island and if I had a Peep for an hour or two.....' but he could read the answer in the Colonel's eyes and had to tell his brother it was out of the question.

"Imagine his elation when his brother said, 'Eli, it's all set. The General overheard me talking to you and told me to take his Peep. I'll be down for you as soon as I'm relieved.' That evening when a Peep with the bright star of a brigadier general called it wasn't to confer with brass hats.

"It was to take Private Burnham of the Artillery and Private Burnham of the Infantry to a happy reunion with Private Burnham of the Marines."

Low Down From Hickory Growe

Most things we hear about this Mr. Hoover show him up in a bad light like claiming he caused the hard times due to the first world war, etc., etc. If the old slogan, "America loves the under-dog," holds water any more, then Mr. Hoover should be our 100 percent favorite. Nobody was ever further down the underdog-ladder than he.

Instead of waiting for years, and then finding that this gent was a fine kind of person, and not a horse thief, and then putting up a monument for him, somebody might venture a pleasant word now. So I do so
